LAUSANNE, Feb. 7.—Ismet Pasha and the principal members of the Turkish conference delegation left Lausanne for Angora at 7 o'clock this morning. A secretary remained behind. Several journalists accompanied the party.

George Tchitcherine, the Russian foreign minister, states tonight for Moscow.

Thus, after 79 days of negotiations in an effort to establish peace in the Near East and restore Turkey to the status of a sovereign state, nothing has been accomplished. However, none apparently wants war and efforts will be directed to obtaining the signatures to what one diplomat called "a patched up peace."

Schuster Damage Suit Up Today

Four Million Saw Gettysburg Field During Past Year

The action instituted by Isaac Schuster against Glumens, Inc. for the recovery of $7,500 alleged damages for the alteration of the storehouse now occupied by F. W. Woolworth Co., is being heard today by a jury of seven men in the corporation court at Danville.

This litigation is expected to last throughout the evening. Mr. Schuster has claimed for damages on the alleged damage done to the storehouse in remodeling it for the Woolworth people.

The jury hearing the action is composed of L. W. Dunford, P. D. Anderson, J. G. Newman, W. O. Williams, G. W. Cole, J. W. Lippman and A. A. Giles.

Governor Hardwick had not said today if he would forbid whipping as church organizations have asked.

Victims of Awning Crash Improving

Toni Prestoni and Will Wright Badly Hurt When Shed Subsides—City Engineer to Inspect Others.

Toni Prestoni and Will Wright, injured yesterday evening when a wooden awning, forty feet long, in front of Farmers' Warehouse, on Union street, collapsed and crushed them, passed a fairly comfortable night at Edmunds hospital, reports from that institution said this morning.

No symptoms had been manifested which would lead to believe that they are more seriously hurt than thought, but it was said nothing definite on this point could be given pending the development of the X-ray plates. Both men were taken to X-ray examination this morning.

The two men were walking under the shed when, without warning, it collapsed and both were caught under the wreckage, being pulled out unconscious by people who hastened to the scene. Doctors were hastily called and both men were found to have suffered serious fractures and I was suffering badly from shock.

One result of the accident which was due to the accumulation of snow on the shed overhanging the sidewalk, was an inspection of similar awnings by city engineer, R. R. Danville, who said that he would condemn any similar awnings which appeared to be unsafe. Judging from the position of the fallen awning on Union street, it fell flat to the sidewalk, indicating that the sheds had rotted, letting the awning subsides from the point of contact with the wall.

Toni Prestoni suffered a fracture of the bone in the upper right leg, crushed nose and numerous and severe bruises about the head, face and body. He showed no signs of internal injury or concussion except for bleeding at the nose, which may have come, and probably did, from the crushed nose. However, he suffered greatly from shock and it was a long while before he responded to efforts of attending physicians.

Will Wright, perhaps the most seriously injured, sustained a fractured (Continued on page two.)

Visitors May Obtain Desirable Women Companions to Accompany Them to Theatre or Dinner—Fee Is $10.

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—Lonely men in New York, who dislike to attend the theatre and dinner alone, may now obtain desirable women companions from an agency in New York. The fee is $10.

Advertisements stating: "If you are a stranger, if you wish to spend a pleasant evening we will introduce you to a young lady of intelligence, good to look upon and with a pleasant personality who will be a jolly dinner and theatre companion. In calling us state preferences as to types and desired accomplishments. This is an invitation to only the well-bred, cultured, any clean evening's entertainment."

The agency, which reports a good business, says it requires the strictest social references from its young ladies. They must sign a contract agreeing among other things, to abstain from liquor, and to refuse to allow their clients to escort them home.

One newspaper sent a reporter to the agency's office, and an out-of-town merchant, the reporter's story today indicated that he had found that the agency's representations were correct.

Alleged Negro Highwayman Is Given Freedom

Miss Margaret Stone Weds Rufus E. Smith

Dave Hannon, colored, arrested on a charge of highway robbery in connection with the hold-up of C. E. Perkins last Saturday night, was given his freedom this morning, after an investigation by the police had failed to sustain the charge. Hannon was arrested shortly after the robbery occurred, on being pointed out by Perkins as resembling the negro who held him up and relieved him of a small amount of money and his watch.

Hannon was given a hearing on Monday morning, but the mayor reserved his decision until today. The negro denied the charge and sought to prove his innocence on the night in question Perkins' statement that he could not swear that Hannon was the man who had robbed him. The charge this morning and Hannon was released from custody.

President Warns Against Bonus Attached to Bill Altering Debt Repayment—Asks Decision on Ship Measure.

(By The Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—Congressional approval of the war debt funding agreement negotiations with Great Britain was requested by President Harding today as "a free country of the English speaking world to the validity of contracts." Coupled with this approval the President asked in an address to the joint session of the Senate and House Congress should enact into law the administration ship bill because "it is as important to avoid losses as it is to secure funds on debts."

A simple time for action on both these measures it was declared by President Harding, remains before the present Congress goes out of existence on March 4th.

The President made no specific recommendation as to the form the action of Congress on the British debt should take, leaving it to the leaders in Congress to decide what method should be adopted to amend the present law so as to permit confirmation of the agreement recently reached by the American and British debt commissions.

It was manifest from the beginning, he said, that Great Britain could not undertake any program of payment which would conform to the limitations of time and interest rates which the commission had been authorized to grant. But here was a great nation acknowledging its obligations and seeking terms in which it might repay. Though your commission proceeded to negotiate in the manner which was the only one possible, it went so far as it believed the American sense of fair play would justify. It means vastly more than the mere funding and the ultimate discharge of the largest international loan ever contracted. It is a recognition of the English speaking world to the validity of contracts. It is in effect a pledge against war and was extended under the rigid adherence to debt reduction and retrenchment which enhances stability precisely as it discharges obligations.

Alfuding indirectly to proposals to attach to the Congressional act of approval a soldiers' bonus bill, the President reminded Congress that the wartime authority for the loans contained in itself a stipulation that when the currency was paid back it should be applied to the retirement of Liberty bonds and other government issues.

As a part of his statement on the debt negotiations the executive read a report from the American commission headed by Secretary Mellon describing the settlement as "fair and just to both governments and predicting that it would make a most important contribution to international stability."

Mr. Harding's appeal for action on the ship bill was prompted, he said by suggestions that its opponents were seeking to prevent a roll call on it before the end of the session.

"More avoidance by prolonged debate," he declared, is a mark of impotence on a vitally important public question. I plead for a decision. If there is a favorable majority the bill should be enacted. It is opposed to the majority of the executive branch of the government may proceed as best it can to end the losses in liquidation and humiliation.

MYSTERY HOUSE IN HAMBURG RAIDED
(By The Associated Press)
HAMBURG, Feb. 7.—Police believe they have uncovered here a "den" for the disposal of large quantities of valuable articles stolen in Germany.

They were advised recently that jewelry, gold novelties, etc., were being surreptitiously sold at a certain private dwelling in Hamburg. Proceeding themselves with $6,000 in United States banknotes and posing as foreigners, several officials visited the place. The upshot was an investigation revealing valuables worth $60,000 and a list bore the imprints of Mexican film.

Police officers were called at one o'clock this morning to the home of Mrs. L. A. Palmer, 10 Colquhoun street, in answer to a hasty summons which urged them to lose no time. Arriving at the home Police Sergeant J. H. Martin and Officers George W. Price and O. S. Mayberry report finding Mrs. Palmer suffering from what was alleged to be poisoned liquor. Seeing her condition required medical treatment, doctors were called and the usual expedients were resorted to. Mrs. Palmer, according to the officers, told a story which in effect is as follows:

She had gone from her home at about nine o'clock to a store on Colquhoun street. On her way back a Ford sedan car drove up to the sidewalk, two men leaped out, seized her and forced her into the car. She then proceeded to the street and she was ejected from the car into the arms of her home where she was found.

It was not until the lapse of two or three hours that she began to be ill, at which time the police were called. The police say that the only person who saw the car was a man in the sedan was that they had on raincoats.

Von Bissing Is Cleared of Killing Edith Cavell

Woman Complains Of Being Attacked

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 7.—Responsibility for the execution of Edith Cavell, the British nurse, shot during the war in Brussels, has now definitely been placed at the door of General von Sauberzweig, according to the Brussels' correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The death of Miss Cavell has generally been attributed to General von Bissing, but a letter from Baron von Der Lancken to the German foreign secretary, which has just recently been made public, reveals that official of this ship on his name, the correspondent writes.

It also established that General von Sauberzweig had the power to stay the execution in order to give time for an appeal to the Emperor for mercy. To accomplish this General von Sauberzweig would have had only to withhold his confirmation of the sentence of the court martial.

Baron von Der Lancken was in Brussels at the time his official letter to the German Imperial Chancellery. He wrote the following letter:

The Cavell affairs is known to your excellency in all its details. The effect of it has been what I predicted to you. Sauberzweig in an interview I had with him without, however, being able to shake him from his point of view regarding the opportuneness of the execution.

General von Sauberzweig, as successor to General von Knaebel, was ordered to institute a reign of terror in Brussels, the correspondent declares, and throughout his administration arrests and condemnations followed one another without cessation.

Millionaire Broker And Wife Separate

Woman Complains Of Being Attacked

CHICAGO, Feb. 6.—Frederick D. Countess, millionaire broker and his wife, have separated. The report, which has agitated the "Gold Coast" several weeks, was verified today by a brother of Mrs. Countess, who declined to say whether divorce proceedings would be instituted. Mrs. Countess is living with her children, Frederick D. Jr., and Henrietta, at the family home, while Mr. Countess has taken up his residence with his brother.

For many years Mrs. Countess has been recognized as the leader of Chicago society's younger married set. Mr. Countess is fifteen years the senior of his wife. When she, then Eleanor Robinson, came from boarding school, Mr. Countess was betrothed to her older sister. Almost immediately he began showing preference for the younger sister and after a short, romantic courtship, they were married in 1916. Her sister later was married to William Evans, New York millionaire.

The disparity in the ages of Mr. Countess and his wife is said to have been one of the reasons for their disagreement. The $1,000,000 mansion in which she resides, was her father's wedding present to her.

Quake May Have Made New Islands in Pacific

This Evidence Results From Widespread Arrest of Communists and Agitators in Italy.

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 6.—Location of the tremendous earthquake, that threw needles from seismographs in this country and threw mountains into the air, was located by Father Odenbach at St. Ignace College, today at approximately 170 degrees West longitude and 36 degrees North latitude, midway between the Sandwich and Aleutian Islands in the Pacific ocean.

His calculation, based on observation of the tidal waves, would place the convulsion about 1,800 miles northwest of Honolulu. As the map shows no islands there, he believes it possible some were hoisted up by the sub-Pacific earthquake.

Von Bissing Is Cleared of Killing Edith Cavell

Woman Complains Of Being Attacked

(By The Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 7.—Responsibility for the execution of Edith Cavell, the British nurse, shot during the war in Brussels, has now definitely been placed at the door of General von Sauberzweig, according to the Brussels' correspondent of the Daily Telegraph. The death of Miss Cavell has generally been attributed to General von Bissing, but a letter from Baron von Der Lancken to the German foreign secretary, which has just recently been made public, reveals that official of this ship on his name, the correspondent writes.

It also established that General von Sauberzweig had the power to stay the execution in order to give time for an appeal to the Emperor for mercy. To accomplish this General von Sauberzweig would have had only to withhold his confirmation of the sentence of the court martial.

Baron von Der Lancken was in Brussels at the time his official letter to the German Imperial Chancellery. He wrote the following letter:

The Cavell affairs is known to your excellency in all its details. The effect of it has been what I predicted to you. Sauberzweig in an interview I had with him without, however, being able to shake him from his point of view regarding the opportuneness of the execution.

General von Sauberzweig, as successor to General von Knaebel, was ordered to institute a reign of terror in Brussels, the correspondent declares, and throughout his administration arrests and condemnations followed one another without cessation.

MORSE BROTHERS OBTAIN WRITS OF HABEAS CORPUS

(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Benjamin and Harry P. Morse, arrested as they were passing through New York in a sleeper this morning and arraigned on a federal indictment charging them with conspiring with Charles W. Morse, their father, and 21 other defendants to use the mails to defraud steamship stock purchasers, late today obtained writs of habeas corpus.

Federal Judge Winslow made the writs returnable next Tuesday and admitted them to $25,000 bail each under the indictment. They furnished bonds.

The brothers, seized as they were journeying from New England to Washington to face trial there for alleged war frauds, contended their detention here was illegal inasmuch as both were engaged in court contests of the right of the federal authorities to remove them to this jurisdiction for trial—Benjamin at Boston and Harry at New York, Conn.

Two Men Crushed Under Awning That Snow-Laden, Falls

lower jawbone, the fracture occurring at the point of the chin. It was also thought that the bone is a dislocated on the left side. The ligaments, muscle and gums at the point of fracture were torn completely apart, and it is feared that the tissues and nerves in the jaw are injured. If this is the case, the future is problematical. One tooth was also torn out.

No one saw the fall of the awning, but its crash to the pavement made a loud noise and soon there was a large crowd. Among the first to appear on the scene was Tom Deane of the New York Pool room. He quickly gathered a crowd of men together and the fallen men of Danville were lifted and the two men were dragged from underneath and taken into the pressing establishment of Y. W. Yancey, colored.

That at least one man was known to be under the awning came about by reason of the fact that Will Wright had just left a grocery store nearby. The proprietor of this store heard the noise of the fall, rushed out and saw that the awning in front of the Farmers' Warehouse had fallen to the sidewalk and could neither see Wright nor anyone else near about. It was not known that Preston had been lifted from the wreckage and taken into the pressing shop he displayed symptoms of acute shock, was bleeding from the nose and mouth and was shaking all over. Wright, on the other hand, seemed to be dazed, but was able to move about slightly. Neither man lost consciousness and both were able to talk and give their names.

Both Preston and Wright were close together when found. Men in the rescue party did not know whether there were others in the debris and all of the awning was lifted clear of the sidewalk to settle the question. However, none was found.

Tom Preston works at the Riverside and Dan River Cotton mill. He was on his way to his boarding house, run by T. H. Bennett, Gray street, when the accident occurred. He is unmarried. Wright is married and lives above the Eagle Cafe on Union street. It was said last night that the falling from which the awning fell belonged to the Danville Warehouse Corporation.

Immediately after the accident Dr. Raymond Scruggs was called. He gave the two men immediate attention at the scene of the accident and as soon as possible sent them to Edmunds hospital. Dr. J. L. Jennings was then called in by Dr. Scruggs to assist him.

It was the opinion of all who examined the wreckage last night that both men were lucky to have escaped with their lives. Evidently none of the heavy timbers struck them. The whole mass of the awning, weighing down with snow, probably weighed five or six tons and had one of the timbers supporting the shed which extends out over the street struck either of the men life would have been crushed out.

It was stated last night that there were no supporting pillars under the awning; that these had been removed sometime back at the instance of the city authorities. The awning was supported by timbers extending from the building and imbedded in the walls, and by cables from the eaves of the awning back to the building.

FORE—LONGWELL

At 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the parsonage of the Cabell Street Methodist church and in the presence of a small group of the close friends of the two, Miss Alice H. Longwell and Robert T. Fore were united in marriage by the Rev. O. B. Norton, pastor of that church. The simplicity of the ceremony was by preference of the principals. After the wedding, Mr. Fore and his bride started on a wedding trip which will include Richmond, Washington and New York in its itinerary.

Miss Longwell is a daughter of Mrs. Henrietta and the late H. D. Longwell, of 844 Pine street and is well known and greatly esteemed. She was becomingly gowned in a traveling suit of blue, with hat and accessories to match it, and made a charming bride.

Mr. Fore holds a responsible position with the Danville Knitting mills and has for years been identified with that industry and is esteemed and valued by his employer and has many friends among the young men of this city, where he has long resided.

Mr. and Mrs. Fore will be at home in Danville after February 13.

REV. J. CLYDE HOLLAND TAKEN TO A HOSPITAL

The Rev. J. Clyde Holland, who has been ill at his residence on North Main street for ten days, suffering from something like a nervous breakdown and with some symptoms of influenza recently developing was yesterday removed to Edmunds hospital by the attending physician in the hope that his condition will improve more rapidly there. A few friends of the minister were aware of his illness besides the members of his congregation. Of course, but his illness had not been viewed as serious. Mr. Holland is not a strong man and his vitality had been severely taxed by his duties and duties devolving upon him, some involving fatigue and exposure to the elements and sometimes strenuous weather and temperature conditions.

The physician and many friends are hopeful that he may improve as he is now being treated at his home and to return to his usual activities.

—Miss Nina Westbrock, underwent an operation for removal of tonsils at the General Hospital yesterday.

—W. R. McNeill who has been confined to his home for several weeks, is recovered and is able to be out again.

Don't Worry If Gassy, Sour, Belching Stomach Follows a Meal, Use Stunt's Dyspepsia Tablets.

Succors, starches and meals of the average meal often sour and cause gas because the stomach cannot at the time produce the alkaline effect to prevent acidity. So your recourse is to Stunt's Dyspepsia Tablets. Take them after eating or any time. They are pleasant white tablets and they do the work so safely and come so fast that you feel great, you approach the next meal contentedly and you learn the secret of good eating and how to take care of the stomach troubled with indigestion. You can get these tablets at almost any drug store in the U. S. and Canada at 50 cents a box. Those who fear to eat pie, cheese, sausage, pastry and the good things of the table for fear of a sour stomach due to indigestion go back to them without fear or distress. Famous Beauty Expert.

THERE is no necessity for any woman not being able to improve herself to the utmost and make herself charming in the highest degree—at any age!

I have iterated upon many occasions, "Every woman can be charming." We have many aids today that the woman of 20 years ago did not have and having these aids and following the instructions to be outlined in this series of articles it is possible for every woman to rehabilitate herself and no longer be classed as an old woman, regardless of the years that she may have carried.

It is a matter of culture entirely. Your daughter at 14 may be very uncoquettish and awkward and what do you do? You carefully train them either at home, at the dancing school, till all the rough edges are polished. It is the matter of culture, training, and just so any woman today can train herself to make use of the many little artifices that will not interfere

Dr. R. E. Burton Addresses Two Audiences Here

Dr. Richard E. Burton, who occupies the chair of English at the University of Minnesota, an eminent scholar and lecturer and a lecturer of unusual attainments, spoke twice yesterday to large Danville audiences—first in the afternoon in the Sunday School room of the First Baptist church, and again in the evening in the main auditorium of the church.

At both lectures the speaker was under the auspices of the Wednesday Afternoon Club.

The subject of the afternoon lecture was "Contemporary Literature," a theme of broad interest, and as presented by Dr. Burton, who is a discerning and discriminating critic, one displaying marvelous facets, often overlooked. He developed his subject with an air of confidence and perspective, rejecting, accepting, analyzing, his knowledge of technique and his sense of the dramatic were factors in his presentation that impressed his listeners.

The subject of the evening lecture was "The Bible as a Literary Monument." He introduced his subject by reverting to the tendency of a few decades past to eliminate the Bible from the curriculum of the High Schools and Colleges of the country. And the speaker gave three reasons for this: First, because those in authority were afraid of offending the diverse religious elements; second, because the whole trend of education had been toward the secular; and third, because all were fearful that some particular slant or twist would be given by those who taught.

Dr. Burton suggested that the Bible deserved a place in the school, not for its cultural value. The finest idiom that the English language has is to be found in the Bible, the speaker said, and added that it was desirable to protect the child from the English and give him a foundation of practical, every-day and at the same time cultured English, then bring the Bible back into the schools.

The lecturer alluded to the period of a child's life when character should be formed, the plastic age, and asserted that no book contained such powerful factors for character building as the Bible.

The speaker then set forth some of the reasons why the Bible had come to be looked upon with distaste by many of the youth of the country. Foremost was the fact that children had been forced to read the Bible. Always the fact of coercion stood forth and children had been trained to love the book, but rather to shun it. Further, the Bible had never been printed attractively. That is, the cover was usually black and dingy, the book heavy and cumbersome, and finally the text itself, the stories of the Bible hidden in the dry details of genealogies and the setting forth of laws. As an instance, the speaker mentioned the story of Joseph, which he said was tucked back in the back of Genesis, hidden and obscured. It should be printed separately—displayed—for, as Dr. Burton pointed out, it is a real gem of literature, one of the masterpieces of the English language. If children are taught to love the Bible, they are led to read it as they would Swiss Family Robinson or Robinson Crusoe, far more would read it and enjoy its truths and its marvelous passages.

In the course of his lecture the speaker had occasion to mention apocryphal books of the Bible as distinguished from canonical Scripture. He said that he thought it was a great mistake to exclude these books, for he said that all apocryphal books are not apocryphal in the bad meaning of the word, and certainly some of them contained passages, for beauty of description, profundity of thought and richness of spirit rivaling that which could be found in the canonical Scriptures.

The tendency of the present day, said Dr. Burton, was to bring the Bible back into the larger schools of learning and to bring it back to the youth of the country. He found the most finished specimens of the pure English idiom.

Dr. Burton said in his lectures through many States that of all subjects, the people generally would rather listen to a lecture on the Bible; the interest in this book is manifest; the people want to learn more about with her sweet natural being and still will make her so charming that all her friends and relatives will exclaim as a remark that she is indeed beautiful!

Defining the word beautiful, we have a latitude, in so far as beauty is a perfection of form and color and harmony.

Many women have been proclaimed beautiful merely for their hair, others merely for the tilt of their heads and still others merely for the subtle suggestion of sweetness that emanates from them, but whatever it is, every woman can improve herself until she is most charming. It is not indeed beautiful.

Of course, health plays a very great part in this matter of beauty, and so we are going to go into the different means of promoting health, without the aid of medicine, allowing of course that in sickness it will be advisable to consult your physician.

It is my earnest desire to help you overcome all obstacles that stand in the way of charm, for I am firm in the belief that every such obstacle can be overcome.

it, they want to understand and they are appreciative.

This is true, said the speaker, because the Bible contains three great factors—Life, Truth, Beauty and furthermore it is full of live stuff, matter that is both of historical and news value; it is practical, can be applied in every day life, all present with a clarity of vision, beauty of diction and compelling force.

That the Bible contains all of the elements that are essential to a great and well rounded literature was the assertion of the speaker. There is prose, poetry, drama, oratory, and history, and every element is couched in language that has never been surpassed in this or any other language.

Contemporary Literature

Despite treacherous walking on the slippery pavements and the threat of a continuance of the powdery hail or fine sleet prevailing at the hour of starting, the Sunday school room was filled in the afternoon when Dr. Burton spoke on "Contemporary Literature," ladies naturally largely present, attending an address at that hour. The speaker's rapid enunciation, his rapid-fire readiness and delightful facility of expression and easy elegance of his diction enabled him to cover a wide range in his lecture of the chosen theme. It was difficult at times to catch all he said in the varying inflections of his speech coupled with its rapidity, but most of those present were able to hear it all.

Dr. Burton included poetry as well as prose, the speaker limited his lecture largely to a review, analysis and characterization of the modern novels or stories and particularly those known as best sellers, but he included a critique of the novels which appeal to the populace in their reading and their desire for diversion and instruction with some general distinctions as to literature, a delineation of the mission of the story and a test for determining what is classic and what is ephemeral. He defined a classic as a book or musical composition or poem as one that would live because it deserved to live. The test of a novel, he suggested, and failing with which it portrayed life and depicted character. The artist and the author alike made no effort to include everything in the scope of his picture or his story, but rather the essential character of things that constitute truth.

Marking back twenty-five years ago to "Trilby," a reference which evoked a laugh, he did not wholly condemn the work, but cited it as an instance of the ephemeral character of most modern works of fiction. He swiftly turned from that to Winston Spencer Churchill's "The Inside of the Cup" and described the intensity of the discussion which that volume and its religious controversial difficulties provoked. Touching upon several books by recent authors, he minimized their value and importance as literature and cited their quickly forgotten names and their brief and limited scope as tests of their worthiness to live. Coming down to "If Winter Comes," the Hutchinson story which had been so widely read, Dr. Burton gave a brief passing analysis of the story and its motif and then coupled it with that author's later work, "This Freedom," a propaganda story exploiting the author's view as to woman's sphere and the effects of the abandonment of it for a business career. While distinctly registering his dissent from the author's objective and his reasoning, Dr. Burton rather commended it, as he had done, "If Winter Comes." It was in this connection that he intimated for a broader view of an author's work, by the reader, even though the latter dissented from the view expounded. Dr. Burton alike rejected the extreme view that nothing that is new is meritorious or worthy along with the opposite viewpoint that only what is new is worth while. Incidentally he contrasted the great enduring works like "David Copperfield," "Adam Bede," "The Mill on the Floss" and others with some of the present-day fiction, but on the whole he advised readers not to neglect either the old or the new, but to read both and accept what was worthy in the new while measuring its permanence and influence by the test of the old.

The lecturer rather deplored the effect upon reading by the young people of today of the presentation in the movies of abbreviated, inaccurate and sometimes distorted summaries of the classics of literature, on the ground that it tended to withhold many from reading the great fiction of all literature. He advised against the type of literature dealing with Bohemian colony of the dilettante in art and the pretender in literature and deplored the tendency of people to measure the merit of a book by the "best seller" test, and in this connection his own experiences as a reviewer for a metropolitan newspaper convinced him that the more meritorious was not always the more saleable product of an author's fiction. Liburiously he admitted that he had guessed wrong often in prophetic judgment as to the demand for new fiction.

Dr. Burton in the earlier portion of his lecture connected his matter with Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street" and of "Babbitt," two of the best sellers of today, relating how Lewis had called on him in New York to ask him what he thought of the new type of literature dealing with a place for material for a story with the experience of a man to whom this color comes spontaneously. Without condemning "Main Street" he pointed out that the author had probably depicted accurately the typical main street of the small town, but that he had seen only one side of the street and so did not tell the whole truth and consequently his story did not meet the test of truth. "Babbitt" he regarded as much better, finer story, but it had not the same appeal to the feminine reader since it is essentially a story of men and for men, vigorous and interesting, but with such wide scope for criticism, contrast and comment, he had to treat it cursorily, even desultorily, touching on it only in passing.

On the whole it was a broad, distinctly fair and liberal treatment of the modern literary field and an appeal for toleration, discrimination and contact of the new with the old for the better test of the merit or demerit of the new. He dismissed much of the esoteric, purring and unhealthful stuff accepted and avidly devoured by many as literature and did not deem it deserving of serious or detailed comment or criticism.

USE RADIO FIRST TIME TO LOCATE RELATIVES

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 6.—Radio was used for the first time, last night, to aid the police in locating relatives of a dead man. A radio operator at Princeton, N. J., yesterday requested the Wanamaker station to broadcast the information that Norman C. Balwyn, supposed to be a Philadelphian, had shot Ethel Brown, of Roanoke, Va., and then killed himself. His body is at Princeton, unclaimed and efforts are being made to locate relatives here. The Wanamaker management notified the detective bureau, and last night tried to find the relatives by radio.

EARLY ACTION ON SHIPPING BILL IS PROMISED NOW

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—Senate developments within the last few days were declared today by administration leaders to promise action recommendation of the shipping bill than had been expected. Unusually swift progress was said to have been made on the War Department appropriation bill, the last of the annual supply measures and leaders expressed confidence in its passage within a day or two, about a week ahead of their previous calculations.

The shipping bill remains the Senate's "unfinished business" and is due for renewed debate upon disposal of the army supply measure. It is to be laid aside again, however, as soon as the British debt funding measure is ready, the latter may be held up a few days to give more time on the shipping measure.

There was said to be no material change in the prospect of a vote on the shipping bill. Opponents reiterated they would present a motion for a vote, while administration leaders were still hopeful of breaking down the opposition. President Harding was expected to send a letter soon to some administration leader again urging action before adjournment of Congress.

Ula is Vindicated At the Yale Prom

Greenwich Village Follies Danceuse "Just Had to Go" After All That Row—
Got Special Invitation

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Feb. 6.—There was really no reason why Ula Sharon, premier danceuse of the "Greenwich Village Follies," though a demure little dark-haired miss of only seventeen, should not have attended the Yale Junior Promenade this evening.

Not only was she invited by Hale Elliott Cullum, Yale Junior, who has known her for years and whose folk "back" in Tennessee have long been friends of her folk back in Missouri, but she even had a special invitation from the Junior Promenade Committee, proudest and haughtiest of all undergraduate bodies.

Not very prom girl gets a special invitation from the committee, but Miss Sharon got one to wipe away her tears caused by an unpleasant buzzing from New Haven to the effect that danceuse dancings and stage folk generally had never been invited to start—it simply wasn't done.

Had to Vindicate Self.
"After that I just had to go," Miss Sharon told a reporter. "I got very indignant and my tears and decided I was simply forced to go to the prom to vindicate myself."

"So little Ula, escorted by Cullum, and chaperoned by her mother, Mrs. M. Robinson of Kansas City, (Ula having dropped her surname for stage purposes) rushed from the Shubert Theatre to the 11.10 train for New Haven. She didn't get to the University dining hall where the promenade was held in time to join the grand march, headed by Charlie O'Hearn, athletic hero, and Fred Jones, champion of the Prom Committee, but what a few hours' music of a junior week party never quits till five or six in the morning.

It's happened before.
Certainly the university had taken no action, for it was "always" assumed that Yale men would bring only desirable young ladies to the university social functions.

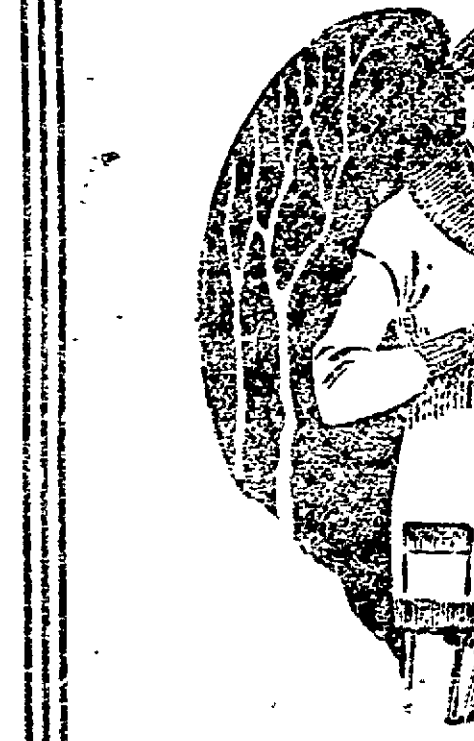

The Promenade Committee had never discussed the matter, according to O'Hearn, and certainly had not objected to any proposed guest. The Yale News was quite angry, editorially at the paper that started the buzzing, but in revised its printed list of prom guests changed "Miss Ula Sharon" to "Miss Ula S. Robinson."

Many a Yale man smiled when he was asked if it were really true that a stage girl had never been to a Yale prom.
"Huh," seemed to be the consensus "there've been fakes of them here till it was all over but the arguing. You can't always tell a stage girl just by looking at her, you know."

Let Up In Cold Wave Predicted

A respite from the cold wave which has gripped this section for the past four days is promised tomorrow by the Weather Bureau in Washington. There were indications of this this morning when the temperature at seven o'clock was 22 degrees, or three degrees higher than yesterday morning. H. M. Watkins, local observer for the U. S. Weather Bureau, whose thermometer is at his home just outside the city, near D. M. I., reports that the lowest temperature of the winter season was recorded on Tuesday morning, the official reading being 19 degrees.

After the let-up in the all-day fall of sleet yesterday the shoveling brigade got busy before dark and hundreds of people cleared the accumulation from the sidewalks in front of their homes. While the technical point was raised that it was sleet and not snow and that, therefore, there was no ordinance provision for its removal, few cared to test the point. The city authorities this morning ordered out forces of men with shovels and pickaxes and in the business section the crossings were cleared of packed snow and ice insofar as this was possible.

Last night sledding parties were popular and all of the favorite local spots had their quota of sleigh riders. In North Danville a large turn-out was reported on Thomas street where a mile run was available.

Consumption In Germany Gains

(By The Associated Press)
BERLIN, Feb. 7.—Tuberculosis has made such heavy inroads on Germany's population recently that cries for additional financial aid are going up repeatedly from the official and unofficial relief agencies.

A short time ago more funds were demanded for the state insurance department which ministers to the tubercular. It is estimated this winter to 50,000 families. One of the departments of the state insurance department is a family can claim its benefits, at least one member must hold a state insurance policy.

Now a plea for further public subscriptions has been raised by a relief agency which confines its activities to members of the middle classes and operates largely through public funds to aid persons not covered by insurance.

Among the agency's beneficiaries at present are: 1,554 federal, state and municipal officials, 119 professors, 1,000 students, 150 teachers, 33 journalists and actors; 133 widows and orphans; 562 independent hand-workers and tradesmen; 1,364 employed salesmen and clerks, and 793 merchants.

Y. W. C. A. Club Girls To Give Minstrel Show

All is in readiness for the minstrel "The Belles of Blackville," and the club girls of the Y. W. C. A. are preparing to give in the Elks Auditorium on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week by the industrial girls' club of the Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Virginia Lewis, president of the club, and the moving spirit in the minstrel show, has left nothing undone to prevent the "Belles of Blackville" from being the success it promises to be. The chorus has been rehearsed, the songs are bright and catchy, and the end men have dozens of clever witty stories brim full of fun. Miss Curran Williams, instructor, is in excellent training for her part, and enjoys a good hearty laugh. In fact everybody is better mentally and physically, to forget the responsibilities of life sometimes and laugh and be merry. "The Belles of Blackville" in their amusing program, promise an evening of real merriment.

"And the night shall be filled with music, and the cares that infest the day, fold their tents like the Arabs, and as silently retreat away."

Bonds And Gas Tax Both May Be Lost In Extra Assembly's Meet

RICHMOND, Feb. 7.—With a bare three weeks before the convening of the General Assembly in special session the battle lines of those for and those against a bond issue for roads appear as rigid as at the time when the governor assured his constituents that he would not call such a session. The advocates of a bond issue nor the proponents of a 3-cent gasoline tax seem to have sufficient strength to put over their respective measures, although the shifting of a few votes in the two legislative branches would be sufficient to give victory to either side.

By the time the General Assembly convenes in special session the highway department will have awarded contracts calling for the expenditure of practically all highway construction funds available for 1923 for the year. The General Assembly will have to sharply raise the question of whether or not the department's organization is to mark time for the remainder of the year. The awarding of contracts for all funds in hand is not being done with the idea of making a dramatic impression on the legislators, of the department's needs, but grew out of the fact that at this time of the year, when contractors have a long time in which to plan their work, better bids can be secured than at a later date.

Something Will Be Done.
Despite the impasse apparently reached between opposing forces in the legislature those who are experienced in legislative matters predict that the session will be productive. The session something will be done to at least in part relieve the financial situation confronting the highway department. It is believed that the majority of the opposition to the highway question in the two legislative branches there will come a period of sober reasoning. The highway department is not a party to the session, but the fact that the legislature will agree upon some legislation which will save the special session from going down in history as a complete failure.

Involved in Politics
Unfortunately, the entire matter of highway legislation, almost purely a question of business, has become involved in a maze of factional politics. This has been the case since, during a period of business depression, a few cent more in the highway tax would mean a great deal to the state. The highway department is not a party to the session, but the fact that the legislature will agree upon some legislation which will save the special session from going down in history as a complete failure.

Drug Chief Gets Data
To Stop Dope Imports
WASHINGTON, Feb. 6.—A comprehensive report on the "dope" menace from Europe, which will furnish the basis of governmental plans to stop its importation, is being prepared by Col. O. G. Forrer, Assistant Chief of the Government Narcotic Bureau.

Col. Forrer, who has just returned from abroad, conferred with Prohibition Commissioner Harries and Col. Nutt of the Narcotic Division. Col. Forrer also investigated the legitimacy of liquor shipments from the United States to Europe. He will submit a report to the Prohibition enforcement officers that shipments are made to obtain releases of American liquor in bond, which is later returned to this country through bootlegging routes.

COTTON MARKET.
(By The Associated Press)
NEW YORK, Feb. 7.—The cotton market was influenced by low foreign news from the Near East and lower Liverpool cables this morning. The opening was easy at a decline from 16 to 23 points and active months sold 23 to 24 points net low. The market was quiet under liquidation by buyers of yesterday and scattering pressure through brokers with Liverpool and Southern connection. Cotton futures opened steady.

Good Morning Judge!

A raid conducted last night by Sergeant J. H. Martin and Patrolman R. Bates netted ten negro gamblers, who were dealt with in the police court this morning. The men arrested were Charlie Steel, Jim Harrington, Ben Taylor, Algie Ferrell, John R. Dixon, U. S. Street, Warrenton, and others. They were charged with operating a gambling table and were fined ten dollars and costs. Wood, who was acquitted after it was shown that he was not participating in the game, Ferrell did not answer to his name when it was called.

The alleged gamblers were caught at a house on Spring street, the officers having passed the place and heard loud talking. In connection with the raid, a warrant against Robert Wells, charging him with operating a gambling table, was issued. The raid resulted in a fine of twenty-one dollars and costs being imposed. About $37, which was seized from the table by the officers, was committed to the court. Mayor Wood announced that in the future money or goods taken from a gambling table or in a card or dice game, would be confiscated as soon as the table was broken up. He said that half of this goes to the commonwealth and the other half to the officers making the arrests.

Lawson Mitchell, colored, scratched Emma Smith badly about the eyes last night and as a result was this morning assessed ten dollars and costs. Both admitted that they had been "going together" for some time but had not been getting along recently. The negro testified that about Christmas, Lawson struck her a blow on the head with a pistol during a fight, but she recovered and would not have the man arrested. But when he came near clapping her eyes out, she says this was too much and she called on the police. The woman appeared badly swollen and blackened. Lawson did not deny that he struck her but claimed she hit him first.

A warrant against Jack Shelton, charging him with operating a gambling table, was issued. The raid was continued until tomorrow, in order that more witnesses might be produced. Shelton admits he was drinking but denies driving the machine over her home and assaulting her. He operates a truck for the Wet Wash laundry. The proprietor testified that Shelton was sober when he left, but was drinking when he returned. The machine was found with him and he was taken to the police station.

Henry Motley, colored, submitted to a fine of ten dollars and was fined $10 and costs and sentenced to 30 days in jail. Motley was charged with stealing about $5 worth of hose from McCrory's store. Adams, colored, charged with operating a dance hall and charging admission without complying with the law by providing police protection, was acquitted. Police officers testified that Adams was in full swing and that no officers were there. Adams denied he operated a dance hall. He testified that a basketball game had been staged at the place and the dance was an informal affair which followed.

Swindlers Use Blind Pool As Lure for Cash

Directors Named For Golf Club

Directors of the Danville Golf Club did not appear in sufficient number last night at the annual meeting to elect officers for the year. The lack of a quorum, however, did not prevent the naming of the new board of directors. Members of the club who did not attend had given proxies and this permitted the nomination and election of the board, which will meet probably within the next few days for the purpose of organizing.

Two new members were added to the directorate, Julian C. Jordan and Henry F. Day, old members re-elected being J. H. Schofield, George W. Robertson, Julian Maude, A. F. Patton, L. E. Conway, W. B. Hill, L. Harman, Dr. Julian Robinson, C. G. Holland, and W. W. Waddell.

Mr. Schofield, the retiring president in reading his report of activities said that the year just past was the most successful in the history of the club. He enumerated improvements made on the course, increase in real activity of the club, a slight increase in the membership and the stimulus to golf given by the tournaments arranged with nearby clubs during the past summer. The club house is now lighted with city current, this being possible by the extension of the power wires to Stockland where Danville current now is available.

The claim which golf has made on Danville people who find in it beneficial physical exercise is finding new expression in the building up of the Stockland community. One of the more suburban homes, that of Dr. T. W. Edmunds, is already in course of construction and plans are being drawn for several more country homes and residences which are expected to be announced before Spring.

Queer Errors In Telephone Book

(By The Associated Press)
PARIS, Feb. 7.—Four years listing in the telephone directories as a "man midwife" has caused a Paris surgeon to bring action against the government which is responsible for getting out his professional description. He asserts that letters, telephone calls, personal complaints and legal notice, have been futile. Now he wants damages.

His attorney, in an effort to show how life state telephone service is wicked up in red tape, has dug up from the currency directory some queer examples of stupidity. He found that a basketball game had been staged at the place and the dance was an informal affair which followed.

Houdon's Statue in Richmond Is Valued $5,000,000

(By The Associated Press)
RICHMOND, Feb. 7.—Jean Antoine Houdon's statue of George Washington which stands in the rotunda of the Virginia State Capitol is valued at $5,000,000, according to a recent appraisal by the state's art collector, J. Morgan. The statue is the most valuable work of art in the world. He estimated its commercial value at $5,000,000.

At appraisal of the statue recurred to the minds of many Virginians the offer of the late J. Piermont Morgan, who sought to purchase the work. It is said that Mr. Morgan offered Virginia, one million dollars for the statue.

Five Are Closed In Single Month, But Others Are In Operation—Promise Big Profits.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6.—Blind pools, very much akin to the notorious Ponzi riddle, still flourish in spite of the Ponzi fiasco and imprisonment. Guileless people are still being lured by millions by this distinctive swindling scheme. A blind pool is technically known as a "participating syndicate" or "discretionary pool."

Five such pools were closed by the authorities in a single month. Yet others are a half a dozen in New York alone. Three in Baltimore at one time had no fewer than 6000 members. The branch office of another blind pool, which had five branches, took in $1,000,000 in a single year.

The blind pool scheme is this: A firm advertises it will buy and sell any kind of bonds on the actual distribution plan, the customer drawing the interest on the whole from the beginning. Then the customers are told that a quicker way to make money is through the firm's exclusive and "inside" method.

Protective clients are assured of from 20 per cent to 120 per cent, in yearly dividends, payable monthly by signing an agreement to pay the firm 30 per cent on their profits and give the pool's agents full right to trade with their money as the agents see fit.

The claim is made that high-class securities are bought and sold and that big profits can be made by forming a large pool and operating with a sum sufficiently large to "direct the movement" of important issues on the stock market and working on "inside information."

Whether blind pool operators actually do any buying or selling is a mystery. They keep going by distributing the golden flow of money into the off. When something interferes with the enlistment of fresh clients, the operators close down and the bulk of the clients' cash.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action. It soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agent for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung disease, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.

Children's Statesman Declares Child Labor Shackles Million

BY OWEN R. LOVEJOY
General Secretary of the National Child Labor Committee

WASHINGTON, Feb. 7.—The extent of the United States are suffering from the nullifying of the federal child labor law of 1919, by the Supreme court decision of last May,
may be measured by the fact that only 13 states meet in all particulars
the standards of the federal law.
Eight states have the general broad provisions, but make some specific exceptions.

Twenty-seven states are below the standards in one or more of the provisions.

Thus in Georgia 12-year-old dependent children may be worked 10 hours a day, 60 hours a week, in woolen and cotton mills, and from sunrise to sunset in other factories.
Children of 14 may be worked all night.

In North Carolina children of 14
may be worked 11 hours a day, 60 hours a week.

In Utah boys over 14 may be worked unlimited hours, and children at any age in factories, oyster shells, in Mississippi boys of 12 may be worked in mills, factories and can-neries.

Boys Working in Mines.
In an underground coal mining district studied by the children's bureau, 519 boys under 14 years of age were found to have been employed in the breakers contrary to law, and, likewise in violation of law, 2,177 under 18
were working underground.

In the interval that elapsed between the first (1916) and the second (1919) federal child labor laws, the bureau made an investigation of cotton and shrimp canneries along the Gulf coast and found more than 300 children under 14 years of age, some as young as 5 or 6, at work in cold, damp, drafty sheds, their hands cut by sharp oyster shells, shrimp thorns, and the knives which they used in the work.

Closely following the Supreme court decision removing federal protection from working children came the publication of the 1920 census figures.

According to the census of 1919,
there were 1,999,225 children 10 to 15 years employed for wage in the United States.

In 1920 this number had been increased to 1,990,558, or a decrease of 8,667 per cent.

A part of this gratifying decrease is real. A considerable number of parent, since the census of 1920 was taken in January when the fields were empty and the schools were full,
while that of 1919 was taken in April
when agriculture is at its height.

However, even if we accept the census figures without qualification,
there are still more than a million negative answers to the question, "Is child labor a thing of the past?"

Besides, there are the thousands of children under 10 years of age of whom the census takes no count, but who nevertheless work in our fields, tenement sweatshops, streets, and in domestic service. The exact number of these no one knows.

And it is these very industries
which did not come under the jurisdiction of the federal law, and for which the states make practically no provision. But they furnish the vast majority of our child workers.

In agriculture alone the census shows 51 per cent. child labor.
This means that hundreds of thousands of children of school age are kept out of school several months a year with the resultant retardation
and illiteracy.

An agent of the National Child Labor committee found a family of six children—17, 16, 14, 12, 9 and 6—who worked 52 acres of beets with their parents. The children have never attended school.

The Philadelphia Bureau of Compulsory Education reports about 10,000 children were absent from one school district during September and October due to working on the cranberry bogs in New Jersey.

Tots in Cotton Fields.
But not only children of school age are conscripted into farming. If they are too young to go to school they can do a man's work in the cotton fields, for example.

One report from Texas tells us that a 5-year-old has picked a bale of cotton this season. Another 5-year-old can boast of picking 72 pounds of cotton before sundown on October 27,
and had very "sorry" cotton to pick in.

Child labor in street trades is another field of neglect. Thirty-seven states have no state-wide regulation of street trades; more than half have none at all.

One of the most pernicious forms of unregulated child labor, aggravated because of concealment, is tenement homework in our cities.

Many industries make the part of their system of production and small children are considered an asset in this underpaid, unsanitary, monotonous work.

In dimly gas-lit, ill-ventilated tenement
homes, children play truant or work far into the night on jewelry, embroidery tags, powder puffs. They usually make less than five cents an hour.

If they are of pre-school age so much the better, they can work all day.

A study of homework in Rhode Island recently made by the Child Labor Bureau showed that 4 per cent of the 2,000 children for whom detailed information was given were

NEITHER CITY NOR COUNTRY CAN CLAIM INNOCENCE

COMMITTEE—ONE TOWING IN A TENEMENT SWEATSHOP,

under 6 years of age.

A girl of 13 was reported by a Newark (N. J.) school principal as frequently missing school. An agent of the National Child Labor Committee found her at 6 o'clock in the corner of a dimly lighted room em-broidering on a black dress outlined in black pencil. For this dress elaborately embroidered, she receives unpaid cents, furnishing her own frame at a cost of 60 cents. It takes her two or three days to embroider a dress. Her mother remarked, "It's a pity she has to go to school."

A little boy of eight is an expert embroiderer. "He was embroidering women's night dresses when I called," reports the investigator. "And his mother assured me that he would do a dozen that morning." For each gown he received a penny.

These are but scattered sketches
that might be multiplied by thousands.

As the National Child Labor committee has always pointed out, child labor is a national, not a sectional,
problem.

The committee feels that the situation, created by the recent Supreme court decision and the extent of child labor as it still exists call definitely for an amendment to the Constitution which shall give Congress the power to legislate on behalf of America's children.

The overwhelming sentiment of the country is probably in favor of a constitutional amendment which shall make it possible for Congress to deal efficiently with our child labor problem.

Child labor is a national evil, involving loss and damage to the manpower of the nation as a whole.
Adult male and female citizens are now assured federal protection in the Constitution. We can do no less for our children.

Dwarf Dinosaur Skull May Prove America and Asia Were Joined

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—The long argued question whether Asia and North America were once joined, and if so, by what means, was solved, at least, by the discovery in Central Mongolia of the skull of a dwarf dinosaur, less than nine-tenths the size of primitive "monsters" which millions of years ago inhabited swamps
in Western North America.

It was found embedded along with its skeleton in a red-shale formation by the Third Asiatic Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History. At the museum yesterday it was said an important stride had been made toward a solution by a paleontological examination of this skull.

A description of the skull was sent in despatches from Mongolia. It is fossilized, about eight inches long,
wide having no horns, its long boncrest is of substantially the same construction as the skull of a larger Dinosaur. Its jaws and teeth also are similar.

Its age is estimated at not less than 5,000,000 years. Several scientists including the paleontologists Osborn and Matthew have insisted the American fauna in the latter part of the cretaceous and eocene epochs of the age of reptiles contained man immigrants from Asia. So the thought Asia and North America must have been joined at one time.

It was said the further discovery
in the Asiatic fossil beds may clinch
the theory.

—P. G. Ragland, who fell and broke a rib several days ago, is rapidly improving and is now able to sit up. It will, however, be a week before he can be out again.

CHILDLESS HOMES MADE HAPPY

Presence of Little Ones a Great Blessing

Four Interesting Letters

Cortland, N. Y.—"I took Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was weak and wanted to become strong and have a child. My husband read about it in the 'Cortland Standard' and thought it might help me. It certainly did for I now have a lovely boy fifteen months old who weighs forty pounds. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my friends and you can certainly use my testimonial in your little books and in the newspapers, as it might help to make some other childless homes happy by the presence of little ones as it has done mine."
—Mrs. CLAUDE P. CAMPBELL, 10 Salisbury St., Cortland, N. Y.

A Message to Mothers
Hamilton, Ohio.—"I have known about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound since I was a young girl, having taken it when I was younger and suffering from a weakness and backache. Lately I have taken it again to strengthen me before the birth of my child, as I was troubled with pains in my back and a lifeless, weak feeling. I think if mothers would only take your wonderful medicine as they do,
I would not dread childbirth as they do.
I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman." —Mrs. JOSE-PHINE, JR., 552 S. 11th Street,
Hamilton, Ohio.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me seven years ago. I was run down and had a weakness such as women often have. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after being married sixteen years became the mother of a sweet little girl. I now have four lovely children—three fine boys and the little girl six years old. I had longed for children all the while and wept many a day and envied every woman with a child. I was 36 years old when my first baby was born. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is ailing with female weakness." —

Afternoon Tea Saved Situation

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, Feb. 6.—So engrossed were the delegates in the discussion of various plans of the reparations question presented at the Paris Conference, that on the third and last day of the meeting they nearly forgot their five o'clock tea.

Verbal exchanges between Premier Bonar-Law and Mr. Tardieu, the Belgian Premier, had become somewhat bitter, marking the only strained moments of the conference. The air was charged with suppressed emotion, delegates were nervous, and for a time
it seemed as if the conference, instead of ending in a "friendly disagreement," might break up in a row.

Just then the Maquis della Torretta proposed in a casual way: "Perhaps we might have our tea."

All consented. The good old English custom, proposed by an Italian,
had saved the day.

M'KOIN NOT TO GO BACK TO JOHNS HOPKINS

(By The Associated Press)

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 6.—Rather than bring undue publicity upon Johns Hopkins Medical School Dr. H. M.
McKoin, former mayor of Mer Rouge, La., today decided against re-entering the institution for the purpose of continuing his post graduate course. He made known his decision after a conference with Dr. J. Whitridge Williams, dean of the school, and several other faculty members.

Dr. McKoin was released by the Louisiana authorities in $5,000 bail pending completion of the investigation into the Morehouse Parish murders and kidnappings of last August.
He returned to Baltimore several days ago.

Dr. Williams stated that as Dr. Mc-Koin was a student at the school last fall he had every right to return if he was able to. Dr. Williams, however, told Dr. McKoin that the school has been criticised for having him there,
and if he could release us from our obligation we would be pleased.

COLD DOES GREAT DAMAGE TO FRUIT

BY L. C. TALMAGE
 HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 6.—Freezing temperatures which have just swept over this state have done considerable damage to fruit and truck farms but are believed to have benefited cotton materially. The cold weather, it is said, killed off the hibernating boll-weevil in many districts. Cotton men also regard the big freeze as a benefit in mellowing the ground and giving further moisture. Official announcement of the organization of the Texas City Sugar Refining Company has been made and construction of the refinery which will have an initial capacity of 1,000,000 pounds of Cuban sugar a day will be started this month.

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

Here are two gallant adventurers shown when their trails unexpectedly crossed. On the left is Vilhjalur Stefansson, who has spent 11 years in the Arctic, greeting Carl Akeley, naturalist and sculptor, who has made many excursions into Africa.

"Honorable Mention" Brings Tears

The smile on the face of Charlotte Weiner (left) is justified by the award of the judges in the Health Show in New York City when they decided she was the most perfect baby in the Bronx. Irwin Cohen, center, received second prize and Albert Murphy, honorable mention.

Many Shiploads of American Red Cross Supplies Rushed To Aid of Refugees In Greece

Five successive human waves of misery have swept over Greece and its islands in the Aegean since the disastrous defeat of the Greek army in Asia Minor. That country, small in area, has been inundated by an excess population thrown back upon its shores in direct destitution. First came several hundred thousand who fled before the advancing Turks as the Greek army was chased through Anatolia toward Smyrna and other Aegean ports. These came from the zone of which the Greeks took possession more than two years ago, a zone which extended inland more than 200 miles. Next came refugees from the neutral strip south of the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora, fleeing in terror as the victorious Turks turned northward after the destruction of Smyrna. The third wave rose in Eastern Thrace which was given over to Turkey by the treaty signed at Mud-ania after the rout of the Greek Army in Asia Minor. Following this came the flight of the Greeks from Constantinople and its suburbs. And the latest wave of migration, which has not yet entirely spent its force, was the terror-stricken and epic horde of untold thousands of Greeks and Armenians from the interior of Asia Minor, who fled in panic because of Kemal's reported edict that no Christian might continue to live in Turkish territory. And little Greece, barely able to support her own five million people, broken by war, her credit strained almost to the breaking point, faces the problem of assimilating these million or more refugees, most of them penniless, many of them diseased, all homeless. It is a national disaster of the first magnitude. The sort of a disaster which demands such emergency relief as only the American Red Cross can give.

The American Red Cross was quick in its response to the need. Food ships have been rushed to Greece, clothing and warm blankets have gone forward and been distributed, medical supplies to combat the epidemics already threatening are now available. Colonel William N. Haskell, who directed the work of the American Relief Administration in the Russian famine, has been made director of the new enterprise and early in January Vice Chairman A. Ross Hill of the American Red Cross was able to report by cable from Athens to Judge John Barton Payne, chairman of the organization: "We are now covering the entire field with food supplies, except small groups of refugees in remote communities and none need starve. Distribution of clothing is not so complete, but we are rapidly reaching all needy cases, having already served the coldest sections. We are pushing camp sanitation and other phases of the medical program are progressing well."
